

Research interests and experiences

Cristina Lo Presti

I have begun my academic and professional career in Florence, where I obtained a bachelor degree in “Geografia Umana e Organizzazione del Territorio”, a Master degree in “Studi Geografici ed Antropologici” and a postgraduate course in “Urban Analysis and Management”. After my studies, for three years (from 2014 to 2017), I had received a research grant from the University of Florence to be part of a research project in the field of development cooperation, in Myanmar. My research interests involve urban geography, anthropology and intercultural education as well as the ethnographic analysis in the context of marginality and social inequality.